

British Electrical Distribution Box Manufacturer

AI Overview

Bemco, George Ellison Ltd, MCI Electrotechnics, and Gavin Electrical Engineering are leading UK manufacturers of electrical distribution boxes and panels. Bemco has been supplying distribution boards and multi-service panel boards in the UK for over 50 years, serving utility companies and commercial clients. They are known for robust, compliant CT chambers and MSDBs (Main Switch Distribution Boards), offering reliable, industry-standard solutions with strong technical support and fast delivery times. George Ellison Ltd Founded in 1898, George Ellison Ltd specializes in switchgear and electrical distribution equipment, including low voltage air circuit breakers, fuse switches, sub-distribution switchgear, and panel boards. They also operate a short circuit testing station, ensuring all equipment is type-tested and designed to limit arcing faults, enhancing safety and reliability. MCI Electrotechnics MCI manufactures bespoke and standard distribution systems ranging from small wall-mounted units to large free-standing panels up to 3200A. Their products incorporate ACBs, MCCBs, RCBOs, RCDs, and MCBs, with IP ratings up to IP66. MCI works with major component brands like ABB, Schneider, Eaton, and Allen Bradley, providing high-quality, durable, and custom-engineered solutions. Gavin Electrical Engineering Gavin Electrical Engineering Ltd designs and manufactures custom-built power distribution panels, MCCs, and IP-rated distribution boards for commercial and industrial applications across the UK. Their panels are engineered for safety, reliability, and long service life, with IP ratings from IP44 to IP68. They also provide specialist panels for heating systems and motor control centres, ensuring compliance with British and European standards. Summary These UK manufacturers offer a wide range of electrical distribution solutions, from domestic and commercia...
