

Italian Vibration Optical Cable Custom Manufacturer

AI Overview

Italy hosts several experienced manufacturers capable of producing custom vibration-resistant optical cables, including Tratos Group, Bertoli Cavi, and ITALICAB. Key Italian Manufacturers

Tratos Group is a leading international manufacturer of optical fiber cables, supplying Telecom Italia since 1982. They produce a wide range of optical fiber cables, including single-mode and multimode, in loose tube, ribbon, and hybrid copper-fiber configurations. Tratos emphasizes high-performance, vibration-resistant designs suitable for underground, aerial, and indoor applications, and invests heavily in R&D to meet custom requirements . Bertoli Cavi offers custom optical fiber solutions for telecommunications, industrial, and civil applications. They provide cables with dielectric or steel armoring, low-friction sheaths for easy installation, and specialized designs for vibration and environmental resistance. Bertoli Cavi also supports technical consulting, testing, and compliance with Italian, European, and international standards . ITALICAB Srl, based in Brescia, specializes in standard and special application cables, including custom optical fiber solutions. They have a flexible production structure, a fully equipped laboratory for mechanical, electrical, temperature, and fire-resistance testing, and the capability to develop products for specific vibration or environmental requirements .

Additional Options Other notable Italian companies include Cavicel S.p.A., CPE Italia, and TECNIKABEL, which offer high-quality fiber optic cables and engineering support for custom projects. These companies provide solutions for FTTH networks, industrial installations, and environments requiring low toxic gas emissions, fire resistance, and mechanical durability .
