

Price of brackets tied in cable trays

AI Overview

Cable trays and brackets vary widely in price depending on material, type, and load capacity, typically ranging from $10–$200 per unit for standard components.

Cable Trays Overview Cable trays are open support systems designed to organize and support electrical, data, and control cables in commercial, industrial, and residential settings. They come in several types:

- Ladder Cable Trays: Feature horizontal rungs for heavy power cables, ideal for high-load applications.
- Wire Mesh or Basket Trays: Lightweight, perforated designs suitable for data and communication cables.
- Solid or Ventilated Trays: Solid-bottom or perforated channels for general cable routing.
- Single Rail Trays: Minimalist design for specific cable support needs.

Materials include hot-dip galvanized steel, stainless steel (304 or 316), electro-galvanized steel, and PVC. Stainless steel and hot-dip galvanized options offer high corrosion resistance and durability, while PVC is lightweight, fire-resistant, and suitable for harsh environments.

Cable Brackets Overview Cable brackets, such as wall brackets, are used to secure cable trays to walls or other structures, providing stability and preventing sagging. They are typically made from galvanized steel or other corrosion-resistant metals and are designed for high load capacity and long-term performance. Brackets are essential for neat, standards-compliant installations in industrial, commercial, and laboratory settings.

Price Ranges While exact prices vary by supplier, material, and quantity, typical ranges are:

- Standard cable trays: $20–$150 per meter for metal trays; PVC trays may start around $10–$50 per meter.
- Ladder trays: $50–$200 per meter depending on load capacity and material.
- Cable brackets: $10–$50 per bracket for standard wall or ceiling mounts; heavy-duty or specialized brackets may cost more.
- Accessories and fittings (elbows, tees, reducers): $5–$50 each depending on type and material.
