

SC Fiber Optic Quick Connector

AI Overview

SC type fiber optic quick connectors are pre-assembled, field-installable connectors designed for fast, reliable fiber termination without polishing or epoxy.

Overview SC (Subscriber Connector) quick connectors are a type of field-terminable fiber optic connector that allows for rapid installation in the field. Unlike traditional connectors that require epoxy, curing, and polishing, SC quick connectors use a pre-polished ferrule and mechanical splice inside the connector body, enabling tool-assisted but fast termination of single fibers. They are widely used in FTTH deployments, data centers, and high-speed networks where quick and reliable connections are essential.

Key Features

- Push-Pull Coupling: SC connectors feature a square body with a push-pull latching system for secure and easy insertion into SC ports.
- Ferrule Options: Available in UPC (Ultra Physical Contact) for general use and APC (Angled Physical Contact) for low return loss applications, such as GPON or RF video networks.
- Fiber Compatibility: Supports single-mode and multimode fibers, including 250 μm to 900 μm diameters, and multimode 50/125 μm or 62.5/125 μm fibers.
- Mechanical Splice: The connector uses a mechanical splice or fast-connect mechanism to align the fiber precisely, ensuring minimal insertion loss ($IL \leq 0.3 \text{ dB}$) and high return loss.
- Field Installable: Requires only basic fiber preparation tools such as a fiber stripper, cleaver, and wipes, with no electrical power or specialized polishing needed.

Applications

- FTTH (Fiber to the Home): SC/APC quick connectors are commonly used in PON systems to reduce back reflections and maintain signal quality.
- Data Centers: SC/UPC connectors are used for high-speed backbone connections and patch panels due to their durability and ease of installation.
- Enterprise and LAN Networks: Quick connectors simplify network expansion and maintenance by allowing fast fiber termination without downtime.

Advantages

- Time-Saving: Eliminates the need for epoxy, curing, and polishing, reducing installation time significantly.
- Cost-Effective:...
